From the desk of the pastor...

Three friends met in a class reunion and were engaged in a spirited conversation.

"In our town" said the first, "people call me 'Monsignor' because I am a part-time lay minister."

The second said: "Well, I'm now a businessman but I'm an active charismatic elder. I even give spiritual talks, so everybody calls me 'Cardinal'."

The third classmate, who was silent, had his turn to speak: "Well, I'm a sales representative but I help in church as collector at Mass. Many call me 'God.'"

"What, God? How come?" "You see, when I knock at the door of my customers," the sales rep said, "They see me and always exclaim: 'My God, you again!'"

The fact is there are many lay professionals nowadays who are involved in the work of the Church – not as God, of course. There are generous people who still make time to reach out to people in need. They don't just pray, but share their time, treasure, talent. They have understood the Christian calling which the gospel of this 15th Sunday teaches: "Jesus summoned the twelve and began sending them out" (Mk 6:7). You see, every Christian is commissioned to a ministry of love and justice by virtue of his/her baptism. Yes, lay people are assigned to the apostolate by the Lord Himself.

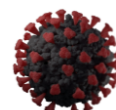

Towards the end of the Second World War, some allied forces entered a badly battered Italian village. In the village church, they saw the statue of the Sacred Heart broken to a thousand pieces. To boost the morale of the people, a Catholic soldier reconstructed the statue. Piece by piece he pasted it together with the exception of the two hands. They were so damaged they could not be reconstructed.

In their place, the soldier who truly understood his faith made a plaque on which he inscribed the following words: "You are the hands of Christ." The plaque is there which tells us graphically what it means to be a Christian.

Physically Christ is no longer with us. But His work of evangelization goes on. And it goes on – in and through us. For you and I are the "hands of Christ."
