From the Desk of the Pastor...

Shepherds in rocky Palestine and its neighbouring countries hold three things dearly: water, their tents and their sheep. Their sheep provide the shepherds with milk, wool and meat.

Bad shepherds seek only to profit from the flock, “pasturing” themselves and neglecting the sheep. The Lord then enumerates the work of the true shepherd the bad ones have neglected: strengthening the weak sheep, healing the sick, binding up the injured, bringing back the stray, seeking the lost and leading the sheep to rich pastures. The Lord finally says, “I myself will pasture my sheep; I myself will give them rest” (Ez 34:15).

God’s personal intervention to take care of the sheep finds fulfillment in Jesus who declares, “I am the good shepherd.” He shows this in two ways: he knows his sheep and he lays down his life for the sheep. “Knowing” involves an intimate relationship and Jesus compares this to the reciprocal knowledge between the Father and himself as the Son. His offering of his own life is out of his own volition, his own love, and, at the same time, in accordance with the gracious will of God.

The bad shepherds are in turn compared with hired hands who are only after their pay instead of caring for the sheep. In Jesus’ words, “a hired man, who is not a shepherd and whose sheep are not his own, sees a wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away and the wolf catches and scatters them.” A true shepherd, however, will risk even his life to protect.

In our day, Pope Francis compares the good shepherd to a priest, a minister, or a believer who “smells like sheep” precisely because he has gone to places that are dirty, smelly, and even dangerous because that is where the flock lives. He invites pastors to get out of their comfortable zones to be with the flock, to go where the action is. He also invites the community of God’s people to be an “evangelizing community” that gets involved by word and deed in people’s lives, bridges distances, embraces human lives and touches the suffering flesh of Christ in others (Evangelii Gaudium, 24).

April 2024 Prayer Intentions: FOR THE ROLE OF WOMEN

The Pope's Worldwide Prayer Network has released the list of prayer intentions set by Pope Francis for the year 2024. Each month, Pope Francis asks Catholics around the world to pray for a specific intention.

Let us pray that the dignity and worth of women be recognized in every culture, and for an end to the discrimination they face in various parts of the world.

Good and gracious God,
please bless women all over the world.

It is a beautiful gift to be a woman,
but it doesn't come without challenges.

Please help all women persevere through these challenges
so they can be the person God created them to be.

May all women set this world ablaze with love for You.

In Your Name, I pray. Amen.
